However, they conceded that the two leaders would use the meeting to resolve differences which have arisen between France and the United States on a number of issues. The most important point of difference at today's meeting was expected to be Central America. Record fall in mortgage rate starts new battle

By Our Banking Correspondent

The bartle between banks and building societies in the home loan market took a fresh turn yesterday as the building societies announced the biggest single fall ever in the mortgage rate only to be swiftly undercut by two of the big banks.

The Times and its editorship

By David Felton and Donald Macintyre

A day of speculation about the editorship of The Times ended last night with an announcement by Mr Rupert Murdoch, the proprietor, that "terms have now been agreed" for the departure of Mr Harold E. ans, the editor. Mr Murdoch confirmed that last Tuesday he had asked for Mr Evans' resignation and invited Mr Charles Douglas-Home, the deputy editor, to take over as editor.

The statement from Mr The statement The statement with the Murdoch in New York, issued in London last night by Mr Richard Searby, QC, chairman of Mr Murdoch's News Corporation, the parent company,

"It is true that I asked Mr Harold Evans for his resig-nation. This was done on Tuesday, 9th March with the manimous approval of the independent national direcindependent national direc-tors. Mr Evans agreed to give his resignation, but has been negotiating the terms of his departure. These have now been agreed. At no point has there been any difference, stated or otherwise, between Mr Evans and myself about the policy of the paper. In those circumstances I invited Charles Dougles-Home to take Charles Douglas-Home to take over the editorship on the departure of Mr Evaos, also with the approval of the independent national direc-

After a meeting on Tuesday of the board of Times Newspapers Holdings Ltd (TNHL), which includes the six independent national directors. Mr Murdoch offered Mr Development the editory Mr Douglas-Home the editorship and later asked Mr Evans, who was appointed editor just over 12 months ago, to resign. Mr Douglas-Home said last night: "I was asked up to see Rupert Murdoch on Tuesday and was told that he had spoken to the independent directors, who were of the view that Harold Evans' resig-nation should be asked for. He asked would I edit The Times in that event, to which I agreed".

He was responding to suggestions by a few members of the newspaper's senior staff that Mr Murdoch was seeking Mr Evans's dismissal on political grounds. Mr Anthony Holden, features editor, said that differences of views had "led to a now quite long string of disagraements between the of disagreements between the editor and the proprietor."

Mr Holden, a close friend of the editor, added: "Mr Mur-doch wants leaders extremely right-wing on such issues as race in this country, domestic politics, the domestic economy and such important foreign issues as Poland and El Salvador. "He has complained about articles on the main feature page such as Ray Buckton presenting the Aslet case during the railways dispute even though we carried a reply from British Rail the following day, E P Thompson writing on Poland, the fact that we have printed Social Democratic Party views, although I have been careful to ensure that their opponents received equal space," Mr Holden said.

That view was strongly denied by Mr Douglas-Home, who said: There has been to my knowledge, and I have worked closely with the editor, absolutely no instruction or vestige of an instruction to the editor to publish or not to publish any political article. There has been no undue pres-sure to influence the editor's policy or decisions."

Day of confusion

The Murdoch announce-ment came after confusion during the day over the exact part played by the national directors, who have to approve the dismissal or appointment -but not the resignation-of editors of The Times and The Sunday Times. That principle is enshrined in guarantees attached by Mr John Biffen, Secretary of State for Trade. to his approval of Mr Mur-doch's takeover of the newspapers last year.

The actual appointment of a new editor still has to be made by the board of Times Newspapers Ltd.

The relevant clause in the statement made by Mr Biffen reads: "The editor of The Sunday Times and the editor of The Times shall not be appointed or dismissed without the approval of the majority of the independent national directors of TNHL." The independent directors, all of whom are understood to have attended Tuesday's meeting of the TNHL board, are Lord Greene of Harrow Weald, Lord Robens, Lord Dacre of Glanton, Lord Roll of Ipsden, Sir Edward Pickering and the sixth, Mr John Gross, who was appointed on Tuesday.

Hospital pay action threatened

Leaders of 250,000 hospital ancillary workers told em-ployers yesterday they were refusing to negotiate on a 4 per cent pay offer.

They gave a warning that the threat of industrial action was looming over the offer, which they said was derisory and would leave most ancillary staff below the official

A similar reaction came from leaders of 130,000 hospital administrative and clerical workers in separate pay talks.

The ancillary workers adjourned without a new date for talks being set, after the management side offered to raise basic rates by 4 per cent from April 1, in line with government policy. The four unions involved want a 12 per cent rise, a shorter week and more holidays.

Yesterday the executive of the Official Unionist Party rejected the scheme as a "phoney system of government". Me Seamus Mallon, deputy leader of the SDLP, also attacked the plan on the ground that it was based on ground that it was based on the failed philosophy of Unionism.

The executive is the main policy-forming body of the leading Unionist party and its decision yesterday must be seen by the Secretary of State as a blow to his hopes of success for an early political initiative.

In a statement endorsing the policy of majority rule, the executive declared it was satisfied that Mr Prior was, in fact, seeking enforced power sharing. It also agreed that if an election were held, the party would put its own devolution to the views on devolution to the electorate and seek endors-ment. The aim would be to work for genuine democracy and not a phoney govern-ment, designed to divide the United Kingdom.

The party is not anxious for further talks with Mr Prior until it has studied the White Paper which he is expected to present to Parlia-

By the Staff of "Nature" The possibility that insta-bilities of the ice sheet of east Antarctica may cause future ice ages has been raised by two American glaciologists. Sudden glaciologists. Sudden changes in the Antarctic ice sheets have been thought to be responsible for worldwide glaciation, but until now most attention has been concentrated on the west Antarctic ice sheet, which is unstable because its base lies well below sea level.

Instability of the Antarctic ice sheets can affect the ice sheets can affect the Earth's climate in two ways. If large tracts of ice break off, more sunlight will be reflected directly back, and the melting ice will cool the southern oceans. Although the east Antarctic ice shelf is largely grounded on land lying above sea level, it is much bigger than that of west Antarctica. Instability could be generated by the accumulation of snow and ice on its upper reaches, perhaps

Evidence for such a surge has been inferred from raised sea levels of about 8 metres in the Pacific 120,000 years ago. Dr Gerald Schubert, from Dr Gerald Schubert, from the University of California at Los Angeles, and Dr David Yuen, from Arizona State University, have now suggested how the east Amarcucice sheet could surge. They say the ice's normal slow deformation could accelerate dramatically if a significant portion of the ice sheet exceeded a critical thickness of about five kilometres. This is because the ice sheet is is because the ice sheet is warmer at its base than at the surface, due to geothermal heating, and because ice deforms more readily at warmer temperatures.

The estimated thickness is close to the measured maximum thickness of about four kilo-metres, suggesting that the ice sheet is close to the point where instability may occur.
Once it becomes unstable and starts to slide rapidly, frictional heating could accelerate the surge.

Wrong statute for indecent behaviour

Parkin v Norman Valentine v Lilley

Before Lord Justice Donaldson and Mr Justice McCullough (Judgment delivered March 10) Where allegations were made of indecent behaviour of a homosexual nature in public lavatories, charges under section 5 of the Public Order Act 1936, as amended, would, more often than not, prove inappropriate.

The Divisional Court so observed, allowing Thomas Henry Parkin's appeal by case stated from Nottingham Crown Court (Judge Ellis and two justices) who dismissed his appeal against conviction by Mansfield justices for an offence under section 5 of the Public Order Act 1936; and Robin James Valentine's appeal not, prove inappropriate.
The Divisional Court

lavatories.
Section 5 provides: "Any person who in any public place... uses threatening, abus-way which clearly indicated that he wanted his behaviour to be seen by the only other person present at the urinals in a public lavatory. In each case, unknown to the appellant, the other person was a police officer in plain clothes who, after a suitable interval, arrested him.

Each was convicted and appealed by case stated. Each submitted that the behaviour was not insulting and that no breach submitted that the behaviour was not insulting and that no breach of the peace was likely to be occasioned by it.

Counsel for the appellant Parkin submitted that no one was insulted by the appellant's conduct and that in any event an insult required an intention to insult which was absent in the present case.

occasion a breach of the peace. It did not matter whether anyone felt himself to have been threatened, abused or insulted. Insulting behaviour did not lose its insulting character simply because no one who witnessed it was insulted, any more than it would lose its ability to provoke a breach of the peace merely because no one who witnessed it broke the peace. The words of the statute were: "whereby a breach of the peace is likely to be occasioned" and not "liable to be occasioned". That was a penal provision and the courts had to take care that the former expression was not treated as if it were the latter.

the courts had to take care that the former expression was not treated as if it were the latter.

The Act did not make it criminal to use offensive or disgusting behaviour whereby a breach of the peace was likely to be occasioned. It required, in the present case, insulting behaviour. What then was an insult?

An insult was perceived by someone who felt insulted. The word "insult" presupposed a subject and a human object.

The appellant's conduct was The appellant's conduct was aimed at only one person who, he hoped, was a homosexual. He was not trying to insult that person, and another homosexual would sarely not have felt insulted. In fact the person at whom the conduct was aimed was a police officer who was there to catch anyone behaving in that way. It was unrealistic to say that he would have felt insulted.

he would have felt insuited.

The person importuned, for that was what the appellant's conduct amounted to, might very well have been an ordinary heterosexual using the lavatory for its proper purpose. On the basis that the appellant's conduct was tantamount to the statement. "I believe you are another homosexual", which the average heterosexual would regard as insulting, the conduct could fairly be regarded as potentially insulting, and could therefore be described as insulting behaviour.

Was a breach of the peace likely to result?

Having regard to the tenor of the 1936 Act as a whole, their Lordships believed that no such intent need be proved, despite the words of Viscoum Dilhorne in Cozens v Briatus ([1973] AC 854, What was required was conduct of a threatening, abusive or insulting character which was iskely in the circumstances to occasion a breach of the peace. Of the questions posed in Valentine's case stated, two involved questions canvassed Valentine's case stated, two involved questions canvassed above: namely, in deciding whether behaviour was insulting and whether a breach of the peace was likely, it was proper to take into account the reactions, not only of the person to whom the behaviour was addressed but

In their Lordships' judgment it was right to take that matter into account for the purpose of deciding both questions.

The remaining question was whether a breach of the peace was restricted to acts of violence, the justices having found that there was a strong probability of a breach of the peace occurring by a disturbance or out of violence.

But those cases demonstrated the difficulties which could sometimes occur when behaviour was charged under a provision which was never designed to deal with it.

Each charge depended upon its own facts, but if proper attention was paid, as it should be, to the word "likely" in the phrase "whereby a breach of the peace is likely to be occasioned," section 5 of the Public Order Act 1936 would, more often than not, prove to be an inappropriate charge in the case of homosexual activity in public lavatories.

secretary of state had the power to appoint such district auditors as he thought necessary. There was no warrant for assuming that anything in the 1972 Act required district auditors to be organized in geographical districts.

As long as he did not act unreasonably, the way in which the secretary of state organized the accounts to be audited was up to him. It followed that there was no reason why he should not take out a particular account from a geographical district and announce that he was going to appoint a specific district auditor to audit that account as long as he thought it to be necessary. It followed that the secretary of state had not acted ultra vires.

The second argument, based on the decision in Padfield v Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1968) AC 997) that a minister should not use his discretion under an Act to thwart or run counter to its policy or objects, was that the policy and object of the 1972 Act was to give the local authorities power to choose between civil servants (the district auditors) and private practitioners, and the secretary of state was taking away that

However the only choice a local authority had was if it decided to appoint an approved auditor in private practice, when it could choose anyone so approved. If it did not elect to approved. If it am not elect to make such a choice it had to use whoever the secretary of state appointed as district auditor. The question was not one of personal choice; the local authority had none. It could not influence the secretary of state in his che or complain when it was m and the action would fail.

The justices were satisfied that the incident did take place and that the identification of the satisfied that the actions of the appellant consisted of threatening behaviour.

It was argued on behalf of the appellant that since the original film existed it should have been produced in court and that the prosecution were not entitled to rely upon a copy since that was secondary evidence, the production of which could not be justified in such circumstances.

However, the court did not agree. The old rule that a party must produce the best evidence that the nature of the case would allow and that any less good evidence was to be excluded, had gone by the board long ago. The only remaining instance of it was that if an original document was available in one's hands it must be produced.

Nowadays the court was not confined to the best evidence but admitted all relevant evidence. The goodness or badness of it went only to weight and not to admissibility.

Accordingly the justices were unitted to rely upon a copy which they were satisfied was an authority of the product of the first went only to weight and not to admissibility.

The appellant complained that because the cameramen were not called, the justices could not be satisfied that the alleged incident took place on July 3, 1981.

The court did not agree. The justices were fully entitled from the evidence before them to be satisfied as to the date.

The appellant further com-plained that the original film had been edited in order to reduce it to the appropriate length and in the absence of the cameraman it was not possible to tell whether the film showed the events in their true sequence.

The appellant finally complained that the justices found that it was a "matter of common knowledge" that a public house in the area was destroyed by fire on the evening of July 3, 1981.

However, the court agreed with the observations of Lord Widgery in Wetherall & Harrison (1976] I QB 773), that it was wrong to conclude that the use by justices of their own local or personal knowledge was governed by the same rule laid down in the case of a trained judge. This was an event of startling notoriety in their area and the fact of which they sought to take judicial notice was merely the date of the fire, in respect of which there was sufficent evidence before them.

The justices were therefore entitled in the absence of any evidence given by or on behalf of the appellant, to convict him and the appeal was dismissed.

£1m arts board proposed

By Christopher Warman

A new community arts oard with an annual budget of f1m, and an ethnic minorities arts board with an annual budget of £300,000, are among proposals being considered by the majority Labour group on the Greater London Council for its future commitments to the arts.

They are part of a compre-hensive policy prepared by Mr Tony Banks, chairman of the GLC arts and recreation committee, and are contained in a policy paper now with members of the Labour group. They will be discussed by the group later this by the group later this month. There may be detailed changes, but the main pro-posals are lifkely to be accepted and become policy.

In his paper, Mr Banks concludes: "For too long the GLC's provision of arts funding has been without any relationship to London's cultural problems. We have been orthodox, establishment-minded, conservative and unimaginative. We now have an opportunity to change this in a radical and dramatic fashion." He believes that arts fund-ing is far too low and hopes people on youth opportunities schemes used to get jobs when finishing the scheme; this was no longer the case. The YOP scheme had been exploited by some unscrupulous employers simply to provide cheap labour and to remove the necessity for them to employ full-time workers on decent pay.

The Government planned to reduce the weekly pay for workers on the scheme to £15 and refuse them supplementary benefit entitlement if they benefit entitlement if they refused to join. There would be no incentive for employers to provide training or to take people into permanent jobs because as far as they could see into the future there were going to be legions of Tebbit trainees.

There was every evidence the scheme would continue to scheme would continue to provide a source of cheap labour to be exploited.

The worst element in this was the coercion — careers advisers would become careers coercers. Britain needed a radical transformation of her class-ridden, elitist education system with more opportunities for all young people.

Above all, in the words of the Prime Minister, Britain needed real training for real jobs. For training and employment.

He said there were now 550,000 young people out of work, more than 250,000 on the youth opportunines scheme, and more the Government to pretend, than 50,000 on other special schemes, which meant about schemes, which meant about and this week's Budget that they 900,000 young people had no real jobs was the ultimate

The Administration's new hard line position on credit was outlined in congressional testimony today by senior officials of the State Defence and Agriculture Depart-

The question most on our minds is How do we put the most pressure on the military most pressure on the military government in Poland and therefore on the Soviet Union? and one our answers is 'Less hard currency'," Mr Rober Hormats, Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, said.

Traveller's Tales: in the first of an occasional series, Ted Simon revisits Brazil

Emily Macey, Jacky Steen, Sam McMahon, Nora Funde-ton and the rest of the crowd got on the same plane with me at Miami. They were under the genial guidance of George Stegner, a man of distinction in his loose yet immaculate seersucker immaculate seersucker jacket and cotton pants. He had obviously done this kind of thing many times and of thing many times and seemed even to enjoy it.

There was a mix-up on the seating, and the Varig steward had to shuffle some Brazilian passengers about, because George wasn't going to let his party fray at the edges, not even on the plane. He flashed his big smile at them. "OK? OK! Everything's OK." Then the plane took off to the Amazon.

OK." Then the plane took on to the Amazon.

I watched them, gleaning their names from their lapel badges, with confusion and misgivings. I had already flown nine hours from Lon-don (Laker £95) and waited three more at the airport. In another five hours I would arrive at Manaus (Varig £265). A long time to be flying, but a ridiculously short time to be transported for I benden in winter to the

I was last in Brazil eight years ago, when I arrived at one of the northern ports on a grimy Greek freighter from Mocambique, having already ridden the length of Africa on a motorcycle. I should have been perfectly prepared for any experience, yet the shock of culture and climate so unbalanced me that I got myself locked away for a fortnight as a potential threat to the regime. What could I expect this time?

That afternoon I explored a few other hotels mentioned yet at the same time I knew that only a few years ago I would scarcely have noticed the beast; indeed I used to defend cockroaches against their loathsome reputation, for I could never discover the harm they did.

The purpose of this catalogue of woes is not to solicit pity but to demonstrate how readily tolerance is distorted by habit. Now as I write, 48 hours later. I find my room quite spacious. The hotel seems clean and friendly. I appreciate the fan in my room for its modern, silent three-speed action, because I now recall vividly the rusty, wheezing motors I knew at other times. I admire especially the tiled and polished floors, more level and hygienic than any other surfaces I have seen in surfaces I have seen in Manaus so far. The cock-roach has not returned but if it did I doubt that it would it did I doubt that it would trouble me.

The life in the streets is immensely invigorating. People never open their mouths without smiling or laughing, and they show themselves, whatever their colour or circumstance, to be happier than any comparable swatch of humanity off the streets of London or New York. I have already recovered one of the great pleasures of life, forgotten for some time: the release from for ever wanting to have something or do something. The habit of compulsive action and compensatory consumption (which is like the air most of us breathe) takes years to discard, but takes years to discard, but because I lost it once before it is easier to throw off now. it is easier to throw off now.

I would have liked to find

George Stegner's group again and ask them what they had made of it all, but I could not trace them at any of the luxury hotels in Manaus. Which leaves me with a recurring and troubling fantasy; that they, Nora Funder-burn and company are even a few other hotels mentioned in the handbook. They were indubitably grubbier. Why has the official Labour response to Mr Pat Wall been so muted? He said in a speeh last week that a Marxist Labour government would have to abolish the monarchy and the House of Lords, and and the House of Lords, and sack the generals, admirals and air marshals, the senior civil servants and police chiefs and in particular, the judges. Not quite what one would expect to read in the next Labour manifesto.

So on Monday the organization sub-committee of the National Executive Committee considered afresh his position as prospective parlia-mentary candidate for Brad-ford North, a role to which he has been elected in preference to the sitting right-wing MP, Mr Ben Ford, by the local constituency party — or rather by its general management com-mittee — but in which he has the NEC. The organization committee recommeded that the local selection procedure should be conducted again.

But it took this decision not because of Mr Wall's speech but because the matter had already been referred back to it by the NEC on account of technical irregularities in the first selection.

There is no confidence, however, in the mainstream of the party — ranging from the right to the traditional or Tribune left — that Mr Wall will now be unseated by the party in Bradford. It will be the same general management committee that takes the decision. Indeed, if the NEC later this month simply acts on the recommendation and just requires the Bradford constituency to go through its paces again it may even strengthen Mr Wall's position.

If he is confirmed as the constituency party's choice in a selection procedure with no irregularities this time, would it not be all the harder later to reject him on account of the speech? Might the NEC not be implying that he would be acceptable so long as the local selection procedure is regular?

Nor has the parliamentary leadership been as forthright as it might have been. Mr Foot has indeed reaffirmed the party's attachment to parliamentary democracy. But at the meeting of the Parliamentary Labour Party on Thursday evening Mr Jeffrey Rooker, a member of the traditional left, com-plained that this was not enough. The Shadow Cabinet should have declared roundly that the Labour Party supports the constitutional monarchy and that a Labour government would not insti-

What then happened? Why should the NEC not follow the balance of power on the the line of Mr Hattersley, who said on television on the controlling power when sunday that Mr Wall was not he cares to exercise it?

The answer is that a deliberate waiting game is being played. The idea is to postpone the main battle on Mr Wall and other Militants until after the report has been received from the official party inquiry into the sunday that Mr Wall was not a legitimate candidate for the Labour Party to endorse? Or of Mr Shore, who has said that it was clearly folly for the NEC to endorse any new candidates from the Militant Tendency while it was itself under inquiry? Does the leadership not appreciate the extent to which people like Mr Wall undermine the credibility of the party in the eyes of the electorate? Or does it hope that all the fuss will just blow over?

The record of this year's NEC has been disappointing up to now. At the end of the Brighton conference in October there was a good deal of confidence on the right and in the centre of the party that the balance on the new NEC had been decisively shifted away from the left on the critical issues. This was based on the belief that Mr Foot would throw his weight against the left for the sake of order and stability, and that the traditional or modertober there was a good deal of confidence on the right that the traditional or moderate left would go with him on the major questions.

On the first weekend of the 1982 Bradford tourist sea-son, Ian Bradley reports on how visitors are being lured to the city of derelict ware-houses and disused railway

As factories and workshops go on short time or close, railway sidings rust and shops are boarded up, the industrial parts of Britain come more and more to resemble a derelict urban wasteland, the symbols of their former strength and prosperity standing like prosperity standing like tombstones of a lost civiliza-

Seen from another point of view these areas provide an enormous potential museum of Britain's industrial past. With industrial archeology and railway mania among the fastest growing national pastimes, can tourists not be lured to the dark satanic mills and derelict sidings of northern towns where once the only thought was of escape to the warm south?

This idea of reversing the normal flow of tourist traffic within Britain is being taken up by a number of northern industrial cities. None has seized it with quite such enthusiasm as the metropoli-tan district of Bradford which is building a successful tourist industry on the basis of its mills, old railway lines and other relics of the days when it was Worstedopolis, the woollen textile capital of the world. Bradford suffers from what the advertising men would call a severe image problem when it comes to promoting its charms as a tourist resort. It has the unenviable distinction for example, of having the least visited cathedral in the British Isles.

There is an understandably defensive air about the brochure which the city council puts out to encourage visi-tors. The title on its front cover reads "Bradford Metropolitan District — a surprising place".

In fact the business of promoting tourism has been promoting tourism has been taken very seriously by the city fathers. It is undertaken by the council's economic development unit (whose motto is "the myth breakers") which two years ago appointed a full-time tourism officer Mais Clore. tourism officer, Maria Glot. Last year she received more than 8,000 inquiries about the weekend breaks which are the most successful features

This weekend sees the start of the 1982 season and the first of a series of weekends based on West Yorkshire's extensive steam railway network. A group of enthusiasts will be exploring the delights of the Middleton colliery railway, the first in the world to have a steam powered locomotive (in 1812), which is now run by enthusiasts to carry scrap metal from the main line to local firms as well as for passenger trips. Also included in the weekend tour are visits to two of the country's best known preserved railways, the Worth Valley between Keighley and Oxenhope, and the Yorkshire Dales, and to the National Railway Museum in York

The railway weekends will be alternating with weekends exploring Bradford's indus-trial heritage. They proved particularly popular last year, the highlight being a visit to Saltaire, the model village created by the great Victorian industrialist and philanthropist, Sir Titus Salt, to house the workers in his enormous worsted mill which still dominates the Aire valley. There is also a tour of Bradford's wool warehouses, now gradually being converted to wine bars and casinos.

The great majority of those who went on the industrial heritage weekends last year were from the south. More than 10 per cent have rebooked for one of this year's weekends. It is not difficult to see the attraction. Going round Salt's enormous mill, which is still working, is to step back into conditions which most southerners only know about from books and television programmes about the Industrial Revolution. The noise of the spinning and weaving machines is deafening, the stench of the dyeing vats overpowering. The machinery is still essentially the same as that found in Bradford's industrial museum and much of it is operated, as it always has been, by women.

It would be hard to find a more powerful expression of the two nations theme than the vision of well-heeled pen pushers from the stock-broker belt coming up north to watch the manual working classes and inspect the monu-ments to their toil. Yet Bradfordians show no sense of envy or discomfiture about their new status as quaint relics of a vanishing industrial civilization. Rather they display to their visitors an intense pride in their past and present achievements and regale them with the straightforward, practical philosophizing which has always been part of the

If they are to go the way of the Greeks and Portuguese, they will do so with dignity. with a proper Pennine pride and with a good deal of honest West Riding grit. Ian Bradley his office at Gracie Mansion, and lounging not unlike the odalisque in the painting, Edward Irving Koch, the 6ft lin Jewish Mayor of New York, tells a favourite story.

Why Mayor Koch should run and run

"I was in a pensioners' home in the Bronx and I was addressing nearly 200 elderly men and women. 'Ladies and gentlemen', I said. 'I know crime is on your mind and I want to tell you that a judge was mugged this week ... and do you know what he did, ladies and gentlemen? He called a press conference and said to reporters: 'This mugging of me will in no way affect my judgment and decisions in matters of this kind.' At which point one of those old grandmas you always get at the back of the hall stood up and said — 'then mug him again'." That story always gets a few laughs and "Hizzoner" the Mayor is fond of jokes, well satisfied that he is known, variously, as "Mayor Culpa", "Mayatollah" and 'New York's nut uncle". He regularly refers to his critics as "dummies" and once called Billy Carter a "whacko".

His answers to reporters' His answers to reporters questions frequently run only to one word: "baloney" or "bullshit". Koch is well aware of the impact of such slogans and he appreciates the value, in television-dominated milieu, of the quick quip, the witty aside that makes an ideal 30-second television slot. Many of the best quotes about him are his best quotes about him are his own, such as "People like me because I shoot from the lip".

That popularity has continued long enough for it to be now considered an interesting phenomenon because it means that although Koch often seems to shoot his off casually he is nevertheless expressing what a good many Americans feel inside. The simple one-liners are not as simple as they sound and are in fact this politician's way of communi-cating direct with the public without the intervening and possibly distorting medium of a reporter or television interviewer.

As recently as last year he said that his vow at the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem was "binding". More recently he was re-elected Sitting under a Matisse in Mayor of New York having is office at Gracie Mansion, been endorsed by both Demond lounging not unlike the cratic and Republican parties. The second is the more crucial fact.

Koch's own political views are changing and what we are seeing is a new political philosophy being worked out, and in public. He is for the most part (and like many people) a bundle of moods and views that were once contradictory (like being a liberal and being for capital punishment) but now no longer appear so. He is no ideologue, has an abhorrence of them, and senses, much in the way of the SDP in the way of the SDP in Britain, that for the time being people do not want ideologies of any kind thrust at them. He knows that if he can tap the knows that if he can tap the mood of the state, as he has undoubtedly tapped the mood of the city, there will be no stopping him. Nobody has mentioned the White House yet — but Koch himself, when announcing that he would run for Covernor last week refused Governor last week, refused to rule out higher office such as the Vice-Presidency (and who, deep down, wants that when he can have the other?).

Important as it is to understand his style and what it means, it would mean nothing withour some achievements, however controversial. So what are they? When Koch took over New York, on January 1, 1978 the city was virtually bankrupt and facing, as you may remember, an annual deficit put at somewhere between 750,000 and 2,000m dollars. During the previous years, middle-class taxpayers had flown the city in droves and taken 600,000 jobs with them, more than the population of Buffalo, the state's second largest city. Nineteen major companies, like Singer and American Airlines, had gone. The city's securities could not be sold to raise money since investment analysts rated them officially as "junk bonds".

Within three weeks of taking over, the new Mayor presented to the Treasury in Washington a fiscal recovery plan which envisaged balancing the budget by "fiscal '83", i.e., the year beginning July 1, 1982. President Carter was impressed, granted the co-operation Koch sought and gave New York the 2,000m dollar loan guarantees needed to get the city going

Mayor Koch: a man of the people .

By last year, 12 months ahead of schedule, New York's books were indeed balanced, and with a surplus of 200m dollars. Koch did this by limiting the increase in city spending to less than a per cent a year company. 4 per cent a year, compared with 11 per cent by the Federal government, and by eliminating thousands of city jobs. He did it too by encouraging businesses to come back to New York through tax cuts and an increase in the budget of the Office for Economic Development, which looks after ment, which looks after services to industry.

As a result, 110,000 new jobs have been created in the city in the past 18 months, spare office capacity has declined from 15 per cent in 1976 to 3 per cent result and the control of the cent result are result.

1976 to 3 per cent now, retail sales have surged by 16 per cent and last year the city security bonds regained their. credit rating as a good investment.

But - there is always a but - the way this turn-around as been achieved has brought Koch some vociferous critics. The 75,000 city jobs saved, for instance, have involved cutting the police to the middle classes. If force by a massive 20 per want the middle-class to cent, 19,000 teachers have know they have a friend in gone, along with 2,000 of the city's 2,500 road sweepers. In this year's budget, Koch has decided that the city can afford 1,000 more policemen. 1,000 more teachers and 400 more school guards. Fine, say his critics but they see this only as proof of their argument. Koch got rid of the policemen and teachers in the first place—and why do the schools need those guards?

There is a strong faction which contends that Koch's policies have for the most part benefitted the white middle-class in the city, at the expense of blacks and Hispanics. The improvement in conditions for businesses has helped whites, the noticeable deterioration in services has adversely affected min-

He will, for half a day at Canterbury, also be the guest of the Church of England, though the proceedings are planned to embrace all the other considerable Christian churches in the land. It is not a "state" visit. The Pope does not make them. The fact that he is head of the Vatican state is least of his dignities. But this Pope's journeys have, assumed some of the characteristics of a royal progress. It is at this point that various misgivings appear.

CARE FOR THE COURTESIES

One is that, if the expec-tation is entertained of a multitudinous triumph of the sort achieved elsewhere, the Pope's party may be disap-pointed: The English and Scots are not famously demonstrative, except at football, and Roman Catholics are not all that thick on the ground; and while the Pope is much admired he is also a controversial figure, some of whose moral admonitions provoke contradiction outside and even inside his communion. Another aspect of the visit that more directly concerns the reformed churches in Britain is that of protocol and symbolism. Churchmanship on this island is of many colours. All bar the orange tinge mean to deal courteously with the papal visit. Most have uttered representative Dr Runcie; but possibly a words of welcome of varying salutary reminder also that all warmth. A few look forward the pace of church unity. But all are sensitive to the formalities, and the possibility eral and unileteral approaches to that they may be placed in positions of unwarranted deference.

Two examples: at Canterbury there was to have been a formal gathering at which the Pope would address as-sembled representatives of the reformed churches. That put forward there some agreed has tactfully been converted plans this would be widely acknowledged as evidence of real into a circulatory session in which they will mingle on terms of equality. In Scotland the Pope wishes to meet the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland but the only time his tour operators could at first find was breakfast time, although it had been assumed that the meeting would take place at a more commodious time of day. Trivia, perhaps. But when long-controverted questions of status and subor- afficient with a sincerity that I found no cause to question, argued the regrettable necessity count. There is a wish to be welcoming, an acknowledgment that much of a doctrinal nature that excited hostility has now been adjusted argued the regrettable necessity for massive arms expenditure to counter the real threat from the other side. It was altogether a distressing demonstration of the extent to which we become the has now been adjusted between Anglicanism or Protestantism and Rome. But still care is taken lest anyone be compromised by the symbolism of the occasion.

This will call for much sensitivity on the part of those who steer the Pope through his engagements. There is no reason to doubt that the sensitivity will be attempted, only whether it will be achieved. As for the advancement of church unity, observance of these nurnees implies that the process is seen, not as one of absorption, but as mutual recognition more fully and more is not as smooth in Christian , to a measurable quickening of freely granted.

The main argument in favour of the first-past-the-post system is that it is the best way of getting a clear result in favour of one party, so that a stable goverment can be formed. 21, 1981) you published a letter in which I argued that clear-cut distinctions between the multilatdisarmament overlooked the fact that progress in the former depends on willingness to con-sider initiatives of the latter sort. I concluded with an appeal to President Reagan and President Brezhnev to go together to the UN Special Session on Disarmastatesmanship.

Two things have bappened since then. I received telephone calls from both the American and Soviet Embassies asking me to receive their First Secretaries to discuss the matter. They came on separate occasions and gave me a full and courteous exposition of propaganda. My visitors left me with polite acknowledgements of the emi-nent wisdom of my proposal about the UN Special Session. But now a second thing has happened. We learn that President Reagan will at that very time be stealing the limelight in Europe when he attends the Council of Nato and that he expects to address the members of the British Parliament. I hope that large numbers of people will feel it right to persuade him that he would be better employed elsewhere. .

Lakeland botel

From Mr. J. M. Y. Andrew

Sir, The article purporting to describe the nature and quality of the Sharrow Bay Hotel in your edition of March 5 must be challenged in common justice since, in my experience, it is misleading in both general discription and specific detail. The food is exceptional and the comfort, care and attention to detail outstanding.

Were it not so unbalanced an account, in my experience of the hotel, it might be held to have a certain grotesque chance as indicating yet again the diverse nature of individual response: the equivalent, perhaps, of a com-plaint against a Rolls-Royce because the suspension fails to disguise every pothole in our frost-damaged roads, the passenger is known to consume gin before dinner, and even the chauffeur is suspected of cleaning his teeth with paste rather than rinsing them gently in a little, very dry, Chablis. From Lord Taylor the smallest number that makes strategic sense and that the number of missiles in a boar, and the number of warheads in a missile, could not be verified other than over-intrusively.

Our present Polaris force would only enter the reduction lists fairly far on in a strategic arms reduction process; but a British Trident DS force would. become important in the overall equation considerably earlier, what then?

The trouble is that Tridents, whether C4 or D5, are, as units, too big.

This is probably bad for the Americans too, who no doubt are buying Trident because it is there' just as we seem to be doing. But should not the British Government be looking rather further ahead than the shelf in front of it? Yours etc. ELIZABETH YOUNG, 100 Bayswater Road, W2.

From Mr Patrick Duffy, MP for Sheffield, Attercliffe (Labour) Sir, In an otherwise sympathetic assessment of the case for Trident you call on the Prime Minister in your leader of March 8 "to issue a full defence summary...at the earliest oppor-tunity" and insist that the costs be "clearly spelled out". What you do no more than acknow-ledge is that the United Kingdom is a member of Nato and, therefore, you fail to insist that the case for Trident also be made against the background of overall Alliance strategy and objectives.

Resource allocation has become crucial for our Allies, as well as ourselves, as budgetary constraints intensify. Hence the property emphasis on burden recent emphasis on burden-sharing. As the division of task principle is increasingly adopted within the Alliance two percep-tions must prevail. The first is that Trident, is incremental at best, and a needless duplication at worst. The second is that Trident might hamper what is obviously the United Kingdom's most important contribution to the Alliance — her maritime role and in particular her antisubmarine warfare operational role in the Atlantic.

There has always been some debate over the relative importance of optional weapon systems, with the object of achieving the right mix in the light of the changing nature of the threat and increasing complexity of the operational environment. The danger that now confronts us, if I may continue to draw upon the United Kingdom's assigned maritime role, for example in the eastern Atlantic and Channel, where we provide 70 per cent of the ready forces, is

1. That the mix of weapon systems will reflect more and more budgetary pressure rather than operational need. 2. That deterrence, depending upon a flexible response, will be affected, for Trident adds nothing, given the nuclear capacity of the United States, whereas the current cuts in the Royal Navy's

Prison conditions

From Sir Alan Richmond Sir, May I support Dr J. E. Thomas (March 4) and add from recent personal experience of the education service within prisons especially of the smaller training prisons with low security rating.

The May report has not only solved little, but has caused Prison Department reorganisation which has increased lines of communication and central bureaucracy, making more difficult the successful implementation of unbelievable degree of over-crowding. Yet large sums of capital have been spent in one instance to provide the largest purpose-built chapel in the area in modern times for minimal use. An attractive new education block is heavily under-used because of (a) artificial restrictions "negotiated" between the Governor and the Prison Officers' Association; (b) an inadequate number of uniformed staff provided by the Home Office to utilise the capital investment; (c) sudden high-level investment; decisions to reduce some political decisions to reduce some day-time education/training in order to increase the workforce in the production workshops; and (d) pressure by uniformed staff on civilian employees (who depend on such staff's good will) not to engage in certain threshold as a dire consequence of a high-risk strategy in the north Atlantic in relation to reinforcement and supply.

This explains why there is hardly any support for Trident among our Allies. Where it exists in the United States it is more than matched by concern about the future size and shape of the Royal Nauv's surface fleet.

3. That consequently John Nott's selection of weapon systems will force, including escort vessels and other surface units.

4. That such a development in conventional weaponry may have the effect of lowering the nuclear

Royal Navy's surface fleet.
Clearly, a greater precision in Alliance priorities is required if we are to provide for the most scarce resources. However, so long as the Prime Minister and Defence Secretary insist on maintaining the appearance of an all-round contribution by the United Kingdom to the Alliance, this Government's defence pos-ture will remain unconvincing within the Alliance and its defence policy will remain con-

Yours etc. PATRICK DUFFY. House of Commons.

From Mr George Delf Sir, Nothing could better illustrate the accelerating degeneration of our civilization than your blood-chilling statement (March 8): "it is a very serious prospect to take the risk that at some future date we might be faced with the extinction of these islands when in return we might only be able to threaten a few cities."

Thus is the suicidal criminality of the "balance of terror" rationalized to pave the way for the latest monstrosity, Trident. A few short years ago "unre-stricted submarine warfare" was recognized by every major Power, including our own, as a war crime. Not because those ancient boats might destroy whole cities, but because it was thought criminal to sink unarmed merchant ships and leave the crew to drown. What innocence. According to you we now have cause for shame when our latest submarines can only obliterate "a few cities". We are indeed become brutes in pin-striped suits.

Survival, of our civilization requires outright rejection of nuclear terrorism in all its morbid forms and an assertion that continued life on earth depends on a practical application of genuine mutual respect. The Soviet Union is a struggling, confused culture, clinging to outdated dogma. Just like ours.

important therapeutic and training activities because of alleged security risks which have more to do with prejudice than security.

Governors and other senior staff often change so frequently that they have little opportunity to influence, even if they want, the rehabilitation programme within the prison. There is a feeling abroad that the most important aspect of management expected by London is the containment of discontent by prisoners and staff alike. To that end; "accommodation" with --- pressure groups is essential.

The majority of short and rehabilitation and education. The majority of short and which, security and punishment medium-stay prisoners are inadapart; is supposed to be central to equate in terms of personality. apart; is supposed to be central to Home Office penal policy.

The shocking physical conditions in many of the older prisons are made worse by the unbelievable degree of the containment in unsuitable buildings. ment in unsuitable buildings tends to attract a number of staff who are either authoritarian personalizies or social do-gooders. Either type merely aggravate the problems and eventually fail foul of the system.

As in all good management requirements, the remedy must come from the top. The top does not lead as it should. The physical conditions cannot be changed for a long time, but the use of the declining sums of money, in real terms, could be greatly improved and a new sense of purpose and policy given to the service. It would serve the uniformed staff just as much as the prisoners.

draws attention to the problems likely to ensue if further restrictions are placed upon the treat-ment of those compulsorily detained in mental hospitals. It is, of course, right that before any irreversible treatment is given, such as electro-convulsive therapy or more importantly a leucotomy, the opinion of an independent consultant should be be invoked in respect of drug therapy then it will place unacceptable burdens upon

Abnormal Offenders, of which I was a member, gave a great deal of thought to the problem of consent to treatment, and con-cluded that in the case of irreversible procedures a second psychiatric opinion, independent of the prison or hospital, should Runnymede Chase, be obtained, and the nearest Thundersley, Benfleet, relative should be consulted. This strikes me as providing adequate safeguards without hampering treatment unduly.

At the present time there is great difficulty in obtaining places in hospital for mentally disordered offenders and if added restrictions are placed on treatment it seems certain that the position will become even more. difficult with the consequent imprisonment of those who rightly should be receiving treatment in hospital.

It is to be hoped that Professor Gunn's warning will be heeded to prevent the gross injustice that will follow even fewer mentally disordered offenders receiving the help they require and the already overloaded prison system being forced to cope with highly disruptive men and women with grossly inadequate facilities. Yours faithfully,

DOUGLAS I. ACRES, Chairman, Rochford Magistrates' Court, ... Thundersley Lodge,

Sir, It is seldom that I find myself in agreement with Lord Kaldor. But his letter (March 9) expresses precisely a fundamental truth. If unemployment is to be defeated by reflation, the unavoidable price to be paid is wage and salary control and price and rent salary control and price and rent control, with all the political struggling and bureaucracy which these involve. Otherwise the remedy is purely transient and the end result for the patient is worse than his first state. Those who advocate "re-flation" as a cure for unemployment (i.e. the leaders of the Labour and Social Democratic parties) must be repeatedly asked whether they are also advocating wage, price and salary control. If they will not come clean they are offering a dishonest prospectus. Only the Liberals seem to have accepted these unpalatable truths. The Thatcher system of controlling prices by competition and monetary restraint, and wages by unemployment, has at least the merit of logic, even if it is at the same time brutal. We can as it were, choose amoutation or splinting in perpetuity. What we cannot have is a cure by painless monetary injection, however big.

Yours faithfully,

TAYLOR, House of Lords, March 11.

Budget question

From Mr Hugh Williams Sir, Isn't it odd how, year after year, successive Chancellors fail to make the one logical, obvious and uncontroversial change in the Budget — namely to change the end of the income-max year from April 5 to March 31.?

All other tax years (ie corporation tax, VAT, etc) end on March 31; all other Government department accounts run to March 31; there is even a law which directs the Government to end all its financial years on March 31 and yet, for some extraordinary and unexplained reason, we still have to complete our tax returns with details that related to the illogical and maddeningly awkward year which begins on April 6 in one year and ends on April 5 in the

It would make far more sense if the income-tax return ran from April 1 to March 31.

Yours faithfully, HUGH WILLIAMS, Lower Willsworthy, Peter Tavy, Tavistock, Devon.

From Mr D. C. E. Roberts Sir. In his letter (March 11) Mr Griffith rebukes his employers, the RSPCA, for making their cattle market inspectors redun-dant. In so doing, he claims that no one — and he includes local authority inspectors and the ministry staff — cares about the welfare of animals in markets.

With respect, that claim is just not true, at least so far as this authority is concerned, as its enforcement actions, including prosecutions, bear witness. We care and shall continue to care.

So far as the ministry are concerned whilst I cannot speak for them directly, I must say that we work closely with their field officers and their ready veterin-ary assistance and advice is valued. Your readers should also be aware that some of the major auctions have a veterinary surgeon present or available on a retained basis and they have assisted my inspectors on a number of occasions.

From our experience, many farmers attending auctions and who witness cruelty, because it must be acknowledged that it does occur from time to time, also provide a ready source of information to my inspectors. Yours faithfully. D. C. E. ROBERTS.

This also brought him in touch with Stanley Morison, Oliver Simon and other figures of the typographic renaissance of the 1920s.

In 1928-29 he became, as he put it, a "learner" at the Monotype Corporation, and was already at work on the translation of Fournier's Manuel, the classic French work on type-founding which was published in 1930 by Oliver Simon's Soncino Pre-Press. Friendship with his ter. brother Herbert Simon led to It work at the Kynoch Press, which gave him wide experience of commercial printing, and (with Simon) to the writing of Printing Explained (Dryad, 1931), one of the best and clearest manuals of any craft ever written. In 1937-38 he was production manager at the Nonesuch Press; "my understudy", as Francis Meynell called him, "is sometimes indeed my over-

It was his drinking that made Mary turn to a sympathetic Vita for comfort. Vita was only too willing to provide it. Sympathy rapidly grew into something more powerful. Mary was an unusually viv-

Vita had been an active lesbian

The affair quickly became passionate. Vita soon attained her object; Mary could not long resist the turbulent demands of a woman to whom she owed so much gratitude, and whom she

so much admired. And Vita, having made the conquest easily, treated it as a thing of quite unaware of what was happening. He seems to have been pleased that his wife had found a friend. The problem of earning enough money to keep his family still tormented him; even the small rent the Campbells were paying for their cottage seemed an insupportable burden. He wrote so poetry at this time; all his energies went into earning reviews, activity which he despised. He was being reduced to the journalism he had so proudly rejected in South Africa. There seemed no way that Vita offered a partial solution. The Nicolsons owned a small, new house set a little further up the slope from Long Barn. Called "the gardener's cottage", it actually housed their two children and a nanny.

Vita now suggested that the Campbells should move into this cottage, rent free, to stay as long as they liked. To her it must have seemed a masterly combination of beneficence and self-interest. Meeting with Mary would now be not only easy, but inevitable. Campbell accepted the offer with little

When I was a child, and a teenager, I rode g lot and hunted occasionally, though I was never very intrepid; and always followed along fairly far to the back, on a fat, sedate old pony, and went round all the gates and high hedges. But I enjoyed it, the whole colourful, lively event, the meet outside an inn or manor house, the way the very fresh horses were so giddy and restless, the trays of sandwiches and drinks, the admiring crowd, the spurt of fear and pleasure in your stomach as the huntsmen moved off, and then the chase over fields and getting cold and covered in mud and coming home aching and

When I got outside into the garden of Moon Cottage, I heard the horn again, bray ing through the clear air, and then I saw them, streaming down the Buttercup field immediately below me, the whole marvellous array of them, men in pink, women in black, and the great strong horses and silly yelping hounds and, at the back, the little Thelwell girls with hoped to give some permanence to her relationship with Vita by forcing Campbell to recognize and acknowledge it. If so, she miscalculated. Bewildered and hurt, Campbell took the train up to London, intending per-haps to drink himself into a stupor. There, in a pub, he met the author and scholar C. S.

Lewis, a man he knew only slightly from his Oxford days.

To him Campbell, unable to

He listened in silence, then questioned her as to the extent of the affair; she kept very little back. He was stunned by the news. It may be that Mary had He flung out of the pub and went back to Weald in a black rage, his sense of betrayal now compounded with jealousy and wounded pride. That night the Campbell children woke crying to an empty house, the curtains flying from open windows, the furniture flung about. Mary, terrified, took refuge with Vita, and (according to Campbell's imaginative account) Dorothy Wellesley, whom Vita had summoned by telephone to Long Barn, sat up all night with a shot-gun across her knees. The next day Vita's diary laconically records her belief that Roy was half mad. But Campbell's rage could not be sustained at such a pitch for long. Mary was surprised by the violence of his outburst, and frightened by it, but she refused to leave Vita. For days Campbell argued, cajoled, and threatened. He chased Mary with a kitchen-knife. He de manded a divorce. When even this failed to move Mary, he subsided. He could hardly thrash Vita, and Harold had returned to his post abroad on October 23. Campbell had no money, no prospects, and now, it seemed, no wife.

But once his anger had cooled he began to realize how much his own behaviour had been responsible for Mary's betrayal. He blamed himself as much as he blamed her. In these circumstances, he vacil-lated agonizingly: he could not bear to leave her and he could not bear to stay. According to Harold Nicolson's biographer, James Lees-Milne, Campbell was meanwhile himself having a brief affair with a bisexual friend of Vita's, Dorothy Warren, who ran the Warren Galleries. Possibly he hoped to arouse Mary's jealousy by such action.

At this point he fell ill; appendicitis was diagnosed, and in February he was taken to hospital for an operation. His illness, and the period of convalescence that followed, gave him an excuse to stay where he was, still hoping that Mary would take pity on him, or that Vita would tire of Mary. It was during this period, in the bitter winter of 1928, that Laurens van der Post arrived in London from South Africa, and wrote to Campbell. The next day he received a reply:

My dear Laurens.

- 1. Go to Charing Cross Station
- Buy a ticket for Sevenoaks
- Buy a ticket for Sevenoaks (2/9 single or 5/- return)
 Get in the train for Sevenoaks (the porter will do it all for you if you tell him you're a stranger. He'll show you the right train give him a sixpence.).
 Get out at Sevenoaks station.
 When you get out at Sevenoaks you'll see plenty of taxis. Get in one and tell him to drive to Weald Village.
 When you get to Weald Village.
 When you get to Weald Village ask at the Post Office, the butcher's, the baker's, or any of the shops, and they will tell you where I live. Weald is only a tiny village, everybody knows my house there...

Campbell was pathetically pleased to see Van der Post. Mary took advantage of his stay to disappear for three weeks, Vita being away at the same time. Van der Post was horrified at the squalor in which Campbell was living, scarcely stirring from his bed, and at his emaciation. He wrote later:

"I could hardly believe that the man who had walked the beach in the dark, comforting a hurt little girl in his arms and reciting a great poem with the voice of a prophet, and this thin, shivering bulk of a human being in torn and tattered clothes, could be one and the same person. Van der Post could hardly believe that Campbell would recover. Though Campbell did not confide in him, he sensed that this dreadful change had something to do with Mary. Campbell was drinking heavily and continuously, mostly gin and cider because of their cheapness, and he spent his days, half-dressed in his bed, reading back numbers of the German magazine Der Quer-German magazine Der Querschnitt. There were very few blankets in the house, and Van der Post found it difficult to sleep because of the cold.

Several times he woke to find that Campbell had covered him during the night with his own blanket, and he was astonished that even in this extremity of that even in this extremity of misery Campbell did not forget his duty to a guest.

It was days before Van der Post was able to persuade Campbell to accompany him to London to meet another South African, the journalist and painter Enslin du Plessis. Although it was a bitingly cold day, Campbell wore neither overcost nor tie, but clasped a thin jacket over his grey flannel trousers, so torn that the skin of his buttocks was visible; he was unwashed and unshaven, They met Du Plessis in Fleet Street, and went to Grooms', an old coffee house, for a meal

Mary's return brought Campbell no relief. He lingered at Long Barn for a time, as hope faded. At last, in April 1928, he gave up. Unable to endure any longer the daily sight of Vita and Mary together, he sadly packed a small bag and took the train to London He did not train to London. He did not return; he had determined to leave England. To go back to South Africa was inconceive able. Instead he crossed the Channel and made his way to Martigues in Provence, where he and Mary had had such a pleasant holiday the previous summer. In that beautiful sunny village, so full of memor-ies of past happiness, he hoped to find consolation. He was on the run again.

This is an extract from Peter Alexander's Roy Campbell, A Critical Biography, which is published on March 18 by the Oxford University Press, price £12.50. He begged her to return, but she was still in love with Vita

Campbell arrived in Proven lonely and despairing, his self-confidence shattered. He knew the strength of Vita's hold on Mary; she offered her love, comfort, support, and wealth, and she had the sort of social position which so impressed

Mary.

He began writing a stream of desperate, pathetic letters to Mary, begging her to join him. He could not live without her, he wrote; more importantly he could not write without her, he would give up drinking, he would give up drinking, he would do anything to make her happy, she would see how he had changed. And to Campbell's delight, the imposible happened. Mary agreed to return to him. The poet saw this as the surest evidence of her continued long for him. In fact. continued love for him. In fact, however, there is clear evidence that she was still deeply in love with Vita. Why did she return to her husband?

The answer seems to be that she was urged to do so by Vita, to whom she had become an embarrassment. Vita's fluid affections had begun ebbing quite early in the relationship. Moreover, she was at the same time carrying on no fewer than five other, separate affairs, one them with Virginia Woolf Virginia, engaged in writing Orlando, was a frequent visitor to Long Barn; she knew about Vita's affair with Mary, and was intensely jealous. She proved a rival Mary could not hope to match Vita's increasing coldness, com bined with Campbell's humble and desolate letters, persuaded Mary to return to him. Vita was relieved. Mary arrived in Marti-gues with their two daughters on 12 May 1928, to find Campbell apparently very ill and overjoyed to have her back. They found a cheap little house and with Mary to look after him Campbell quickly regained his health. But though he recovered quickly and completely, there is ample evidence that his mar riage did not. Mary was still deeply in love with Vita, to whom she wrote almost daily: hastily pencilled letters on odd scraps of paper, posted secretly when Campbell was out of the house. Having settled Campbell in the Rue St Mitre, she returned briefly to England to see Vita for ten days in June, and again in November 1928. Each time Campbell must have wondered whether she would return. By December she was once again despairing of living with him, and talking of separating from him and living alone. It was only gradually that they learned once again to live together as man and wife.

I shall never trust him nor encourage him to come near, but the countryside would be the poorer without him, for in the fox we have a villain and a scapegoat, something to remind us of the essential bloodiness of nature. At stake in these films, described as The New Realism in portraying homosexuals is an explosive issue. When it comes to the immensely persuasive medium of the cinema, homosexuals rightly fear that how Hollywood portrays them will be how they are actually perceived by the majority. In the past, almost all Hollywood ilms have portrayed homosexuals as caricatures and joke-figures, mostly villains or fools, pathological, predatory, and — deserved fate, the films imply— suicidal.

Against Towne's better instincts, he has made a voyeuristic film of a peculiar kind. Though some American critics see within Personal Best images of "beauty and innocence", "a celebration of womens' bodies" and "a film about normal life", such praise beats me. Personal Best is a teenage magazine film which

It would be foolish to deny that women's athletics today are without sex appeal, but if that is all Towne gets from them, he is missing a great deal. In the same way that Personal Best lacks real understanding about the pursuit of excellence in athletics — compare its track sequences to Chariots of Fire — so the story of the lesbian love affair is just as surface and adolescent. It is also dispensable. For Marial Hemingway only "finds her-self", her true, acceptable, Illustrates Towne's fondness for women's sweat socks,

Which brings me all too briefly to the glorious Victor, Victoria starring the transvestite Julie Andrews as a drag queen. Here I will no doubt be accused of enjoying the camp stereotypes I am supposed to be against. The parents watched this spell-bound relationship between their daughter and a young man six years her senior with some apprehension. They tried rejuctantly to cool it tried reluctantly to cool it and they succeeded. Then in 1944, with Phoebe now a woman, it welled up again, fresh and passionate. Alas, within the year she had succumbed to some grave malady and was dead.

Amezingly, a documentary technique, apparently quite at odds with the intense poignancy of such a love story, in fact did much to sharpen it. Altogether a beautiful programme, exquis-itely made by Maurice Leitch.

How do you popularize chess and how do you ensure a constant flow in the stream of chess from beginners to club player, then to county player, then to national player, then to national player, to master-player and finally to grandmaster? There is one infallible way and that is catch-'em young. Chess is eminently a game for the young. There used to be two mistaken prejudices against the game among non-chessplayers. One was that it was a slow game-fit-only for greybeards and the other was that it tended to distract

The Times Cook

So instead of making Swiss meringue which combines dry caster sugar with egg whites, I tried Italian meringue. In this recipe the sugar is made into a boiling syrup which, when combined with the egg whites, partially cooks them before they reach the oven. Unlike Swiss meringue which must be baked as soon as it is made, Italian meringue is much more stable. It keeps for several days in a covered bowl in the refrigerator and can be used for lightening sorbets or whipped cream, or topping pies, as well as for So instead of making Swiss perfectly first time. I still prefer Swiss meringue, chewy bits and all, for small shells to sandwich together with cream. But for nests, and for flat layers to build into spectacular puddings, Italian meringue is a winner.

225 g (8 oz) sugar, granulated

150 ml (4 pint) water

To obtain the maximum volume of meringue from the ingredients use a ballon whisk with a traditional copper bowl (or any other wide shallow bowl), or use an electric beater with a narrower, deep bowl. Make sure that both bowl and beater are spotlessly clean and dry, and that the egg whites are at room temperature.

Put the sugar in a small pan with the water and heat the mixture gently until the sugar has dissolved completely. Now bring the sugar to the boil and cook it, without stirring, until the syrup reaches the hard ball stage. This will register 248°F on a sugar thermometer but can be checked without one. Drop 'half a teaspoon of syrup into very cold water then roll it into a ball with your fingers. If the cold plunge firms the syrup enough to roll it into a tough lump, it has reached the hard prepared sheets.

Fit a large fabric piping bag with a plain nozzle of about 1 cm (% in) diameter.

The best place to start is in Yountville, a picturesque town which in the past few years has become the most chic of the valley's watering

The Burgundy House in Yountville is an 1874 stone building in the French county style run most hospitably by Mary Keenan and her architect husband Robert. Originally the Keenaus renovated the building to house their antiques business but pretty soon, with millions of visitors crowding into Napa every year, they were per-suaded to rent out their

Astonishingly, it is now seven years since Italy won the championship, 1976 was the year when everything went awry. The narrow loss of the Olympiad was disappointing, but far less bitter than the defeat, in the final of the Bermuda Bowl, by the Americans. In 1977 they the European championship, and in 1979, despite a remarkable rally in the last 16 boards, they lost the Bernuda Bowl to the Americans again. The last two years have underlined the deservant drift Essieve to downward drift. Failure to qualify for the finals in Valkenburg in 1980 was followed by a dismal sixth-place in the 1981 European

What went wrong? There are, I believe, a number of reasons which have contributed to these recent poor results. It was in 1976 that an Italian player, who had failed to qualify for the team, accused some of the Italian players of using illegal signals. The Italians were accustomed to unjustified sustained tomed to unjustified susown countryman was infinitely more damaging. What's your ideal?

A trade descriptions inspector would have a field day in London this week. At one end of town is a covered market of mass production masquerading as sideal". A traffic jam or two away is a display of individually designed furniture calling itself Multiples. In the interests of accuracy they should swop titles. Ideal, I have been led to believe by the Concise Oxford, means "perfect, supremely excellent; embodying an idea; visionary." Multiples signifies "many and various."

Yet the Ideal Home exhibition, which should be a showcase of commercial enterprise, is about as visionary as a blinkered donkey and Multiples, which actually does "embody an idea" shows creative design that could never be multiplied as presented. never be multiplied to production line quantities without losing the

And I was glad to see Texclesh back at the show, It is one of those apparently "miracle" carpet and upholstery cleaners that I find actually does work at home as well as in the hands of the demonstrator. You buy a packet of crystals for £1.50 and make up your own solution by dissolving your own solution by dissolving in warm water. To find the clear, fresh pastels of Spring though, you will do better to visit the Mutiples exhibition at the Warwick Arts. Trust, 33 Warwick Square, SW1 until March 28. There, the main display is of delightful pistachio green and almond blossom pink upholstery with tables in pale biscuit coloured sycamore, ash biscuit coloured sycamore, ash and beech, complimented by superb kinetic acroens by artist Adam Craig.

These are 10ft x 8ft hangings of mobile strips of perspex or aluminium, each decorated with simple strips of colour overlaid to create complicated patterns of up to 120 different shades. The prototypes cost just over £1,000 and would be marvellous in public buildings, but can also be reduced to about 4ft square for downers over the contraction. omestic surroundings.

To the designer, batch production offers several advantages. Practically, he spends less time ordering and collecting raw materials and his best ideas gain a wider audience. "A really good idea deserves to be developed and once you have made a one-off you have a workable prototype", says ex-Parnham student Nick Sherwood, who has a handsome sycamore and elm table in the show. But marketing will always be a problem for all craftsmen. If their prices are too low they are associated disparagingly with corn dollies. If they sell through shops the mark-up, now well over 100%, makes their work prohibitive.

Ann Hartree is doing her best to find the right audience for them by showing their work at her gallery open Wednesdays to Sundays 10 am to 5 pm (the first exhibition will be from April 11 to May 2) and there's a licensed buttery so it's a tempting day out. She will also show to the furniture trade at Earls Court

"Such a lot of craft is too elitist. I want to aim at the people who were switched on by Habitat ten years ago. Where are they are and what are they buying?" now and what are they buying?" I rather suspect they are buying Italian. Habitat was to furniture what the modern model girl is to fashion — smart, not always pretty, but with a fashion-able look that nevertheless seemed accessible. That is what the Italians are producing today, at somewhat higher prices. If only English craftsmen could find an equally effective corporate identity, English furniture buyers might have more confidence in going

The bitter winter, coming after a year with above average rainfall, has been hard on our lawns. The last few weeks have been fairly mild and it may be we shall have what all gardeners would wish to be without would wish to be without—an early spring. We prefer a late spring which as the old saying goes "never deceives" — that is it does not turn back on itself and damage precocious young growth. If that happens it will be just too bad on top of all the massive damage to plants in massive damage to plants in December and January.

But the grass is growing now and we should be scarifying the lawn, if we want healthy turf, to rake out dead grass and other rubbish. Small lawns may be vigorously raked by hand with a wire rake, if you have the time and the muscle or somebody to do it for you, or a small electric scarifier will do quite a useful job.

For larger areas it would be worthwhile seeking out a garden machinery hire firm, if you can find one, that will rent out a larger motorized scarifier for a day or a weekend. Maybe two or three friends or neighbours could share the hire cost because one can cover a large area with a powered scanfier in a day. And scarifying does do the lawn a power of good, as does sliming or piercing the turf with a lawn aerator.

Lawns as with the rest of the garden have had lime and nitrogen leached out over the past 12 months by above average rainfall. Lawns on acid soils suffer invasion by soils that are not acid. On the fertilizer into the turf. acid lawns it would pay to This I would always do whiten the turf with a light unless the weather is at 10-day intervals.

All lawns will respond well this year to feeding with a high nitrogen lawn fertilizer, or "nurf conditioner" as some firms prefer to call their product. I like to apply the first dose about now and a second application in about four weeks. Scattering a four weeks. Scattering a fertilizer on a lawn by hand, moss very readily, especially be it a powder or in granular lawns that tend to lie wet, although out of the 40 or more native mosses; there are species which grow on a slight overdose here and hampily on ouish draining these agreements. happily on quick draining there, especially if we water showery and the rain will wash it off the grass. If you have a fairly large area of lawn to treat with fertilizer it would be worth while investing in a fertilizer spreader. These machines are also useful for spreading fertilizer on the vegetable garden and are capable of being adjusted to apply the various fertilizers quite accurately for a given rate of application.

David Hessayon, who has produced several excellent gardening books, has now published The Lawn Expert which he modestly claims is an enlarged edition of the world's best selling book on lawn care. It costs £1.95 and is surprisingly good value. Lavishly illustrated in colour throughout, it covers every aspect of lawn making and subsequent lawn care and different moss killers including those with a mercurious content but this, according to EEC regulations, must not now be sold as a cure for moss - I have not been able to find out why, because mercurious compounds may still be advertised for the control of various turf diseases and the rate of appli-cation is far higher than that we used on lawns. So we are glad to welcome Murphy's Tumblemoss which kills the moss in 12 hours and prevents its reappearance for up to 12 months. The moss

It is recommended that a general lawn fertilizer be applied two weeks after the treatment with Tumblemoss. The makers say that it is harmless to children and

☐ Recently I mentioned that one can only buy mustard, but not cress at the greengrocers' and I wondered why. Had I stopped to think as several readers have kindly pointed out the reason is obvious. Cress takes three days longer to grow than mustard. Mustard (which is not really mustard but rape) which you buy in the shop is ready for sale in about five to seven days. So cress costs the grower about half as much again in the cost of heating the glasshouse. When the wholesaler's and retailer's profit is added, obviously cress is going to cost when it has to be grown in I have checked the comparative cost of growing mustard on a piece of flannel in a saucer on the kitchen windowsill against a punnet bought from the green-grocer. The punnet cost 10p and contained about 600 seedlings. A packet of seed I bought cost 23p and con-tained around 1,400 seeds. So if you grow mustard yourself it costs just about as much as the fresh article in the shop.

Obviously, because I cannot buy fresh cress, I cannot say how much cheaper it would be to grow our own. All I can say is that, to me, an egg and mustard sandwich is not the same as an egg, mustard and cress sandwich, so henceforth we will grow our own mustard and cress. this is one crop at least, I have never known to give any trouble.

production falls

Industrial production in the European Community fell by 2.5 per cent in 1981 compared with 1980 and 1.65 per cent in December, according to pro-visional figures.

The drop in industrial production contrasted with steady monthly increases in the three previous months. The decline was mainly due to drops in Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom.

Standard Telephones and Cables, the communications group 85 per cent owned by the United States ITT corporation, raised profits to £50.6m against £44.1m for the year to December. Sales were up from £537.7m to £567.5m, and earnings per share were up to 36.46p from 28.65p. A final dividend of 12.85p gross makes a total of 19.28p gross against 14.28p gross last time. The shares rose to 523p, then closed the day at 520p after opening at 490p.

At anything above this level, granny bonds look a better bet.

The new index-linked gilts are perticularly attractive to the control of the control of are particularly attractive to higher rate taxpayers, and like other gilts they are free of capital gains tax if held for more than a year.

The application forms which appeared in news-papers in Thursday look a little daunting, but it is worth ploughing through the small print — or handing it all over to your bank manager or stockbroker to deal with. On page 17 Sally White explains how to cope if you intend to Go for gilts — they are as good as granny bonds

For investors the most ror investors the most innovative change in the Chancellor's Budget was the opening up of index-linked gilts to individuals. An issue has been announced with application forms already published in daily newspapers, and investors should not be put off by the forms' not be put off by the forms' complicated appearance.

If you "tender" for the new index-linked gilts at the nominal price of £100 for £100 of stock, they are as attractive as granny bonds. At anything cheaper — £99 or figs per £100 — they are a bargain and provided you can afford to have your money locked up for a possible six years, they are an attractive proposition for taxpayers.

Unlike granny bonds which can be sold back to the Government after 12 months for the full index-linked value, investors in the new index-linked gilt must sell their stock in the market if they want to cash-in before the redemption date. The unknown quantity is how the gilt market will react in pricing these stocks so investors should be prepared to hold them the full six

For this reason, investors requiring income should be wary of purchasing. Both capital and income from these gilts is indx linked, but the initial return is low — only 2 per cent. Like conventional gilts they are free of capital gains tax if held for more then a year.

Tendering for the stock — application forms have to be at the Bank of England's new issue department by 10am on Friday — is not difficult once Friday — is not difficult once you know how. Stockbrokers Laurie Millbank have worked out for us a range of prices to "tender" depending on how great a premium over the rate of inflation you think is reasonable. The think is reasonable. The Chancellor believes inflation coming year.

Remember you will probably not be able to buy at the price you have tendered. The Bank has the right to start at the highest tender and work its way down the list of tender prices until the allo-cation is full. Then the Bank will declare the "striking price" which will be lowest level at which the allocation. Return Tender Required over Inflation 1.5% 2.0% 2.5% 3.0% to Offer £100 is full. Everyone pays the striking price, even if they have tendered at a higher price. Anyone tendering price. Anyone tendering below the striking price will not receive stock. The Bank may decide to ration the stock if more tenders than it requires have come in at the striking price.

Tendering must be for a minimum of £100 nominal of stock. Each tender must be for just one amount, and at one price. The price should be in multiples of 25p. If you do not write in a tender price, then yoir form will be discounted.

If you missed the application forms, your local bank manager, insurance or stockbroker may have one. If you obtain stock through your broker, you will not have to pay dealing commission as it s a new issue, but you may face a fee.

The cheque should be for half the nominal or face value of the stock — £50 for each £100 of stock. The balance has to be paid by April 29. The form and cheque should be at the Bank of England by 3.30 pm on Thursday though the official close is not until 10.00 am on Friday, March 19.

The capital redemption is the most attractive element to invested since it is tax-free after a year. Taking the July 1981 base, and the starting 9 per cent inflation for this year, Laurie Millbank have gone on to use the conservative Treasury assumption of 71/2 per cent inflation for the quent year and extending this rate to 1988.

That gives the redemption sum of £152.10 for each £100. Of course, if the Government forecast is optimistic then the redemption sum will be higher. If inflation undershoots, then the redemption payment drops.

MONEY TALK Improved terms for investors

For building society inves-tors the choice of extra-interest accounts is truly mind-boggling.

Most accounts pay 1 per cent over the building societies' recommended rate, but there are varying terms for withdrawal. Societies have recently been improving the terms of these accounts - generally reducing the notice period and easing the withdrawal penalties.

Provincial, Bradford & Bingley and Halifax building societies now only require one month's notice in writing for no penalty to be incurred. The norm up until now was three months. They are also reducing the penalty for immediate withdrawals.

Boost to limit on payment for child

The limit on small mainten-ance payments made to children is to be increased in the summer as part of the Chancellor's Budget changes.

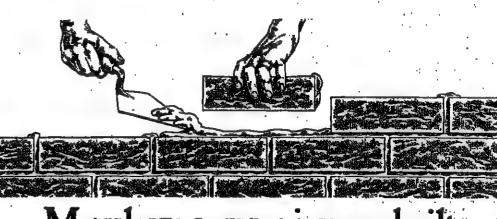

Maintenance payments made under a Court Order (usually after a divorce) must be paid without deduction of tax if they come into the category of "small maintenance payments". As from the date of passing the 1982 Finance Act — some time in Finance Act — some time in the summer — the limit on small maintenance payments made to a child will increase from £18 a week to £33 a week (or £143 a month).

Such payments are not tax free and the payer (usually an ex-husband) is not allowed to deduct tax before paying. The child will pay tax on these payments in the normal way if income exceeds the personal tax allowance, £1,565 for 1982/83.

However, the Budget proposals constitute a change. Where money is paid to an ex-wife for the benefit of a child, instead of to the child direct, the limit on small maintenance movements will maintenance payments will remain at £18 a week of £78 a month. The £33 a week of £143 a month limit on small maintenance payments made to a divorced or separated spouse remains unchanged.

Where there are young children it pays to have some of the maintenance paid direct to the child to be treated as the child's income. treated as the child's income. The first £1,565 (1982-83) will be tax free in the hands of the child who is eligible for personal tax allownaces in the normal way. A divorced wife is entitled to a personal tax allownace, plus the "additional personal allowance" for single parents bringing. from single parents bringing the limit of her tax free income up to that of a married man (£2,445 1982-83). But above this figure income, which includes maintenance payments, will be taxed in the usual way.

Now, even in a recession, many smaller companies have the innovation and flair to restructure for future growth. In short, their investment potential is often far greater than that of their larger counterparts. The aim - capital growth

The Trust aims for above-average capital growth by investing in a diverse range of smaller UK companies, which, the Managers believe, have exceptional recoveryprospects. The Trust concentrates on companies with a market capitalisation of £20 million or less, including companies trading on the Unlisted Securities Market.

Professional management is essential

Investing in the potential successes among smaller companies requires specialist in-depth knowledge combined with skilful timing. The team of profession at Gartmore have proved over the years that they have exceptional expertise in this. Bed and breakfast is the term used to describe the operation by which investors can establish a capital gain or loss for tax purposes without having to dispose of their investments for ever. It is usually done around now before the end of the tax year on April 5.

Typically, where an inves-tor is showing both losses and profits, by bed and breakfasting he can offset the losses against the profits, keeping his overall profit to within the individual exemption limit - currently £3,000. With the dawn of index-linking the investor has to £750. By that time, assuming 10 per cent inflation each year, the new index-linked base line on the shares will be £1,320. If you bed and breakfast you establish a £250 loss which can be set against other gains, but you E750 and you will have to wait another year before the index-linking starts again.

If you hang on to the shares, you retain the higher base line for calculating capital gains and are eligible for any index-linked increases in the base line during the following 12 months. Assuming a further 10 per cent inflation this would mean a base line of £1,452.

Bed and breakfasting will however have established a new base cost of £1,500 — higher than you would obtain by simply hanging on to your shares.

In cases of a marginal gain, however, it could be that the rate of inflation outstrips the gain. The wise investor will take professional advice.

The Vanbrugh Flexible Retirement Plan is built on some of the most generous tax concessions ever offered to one section of the community.

- * Up to 171/2% of net relevant earnings can be invested in a pension plan to qualify for tax relief of up to 60p in the £
- * This relief can be claimed in respect of unused relief for the previous 6 years.
- * All investment income and capital gains accumulate in tax exempt funds. Pensions.do not attract investment income surcharge. Death benefits can normally be arranged without liability to Capital Transfer Tax.

Such advantages are, of course, common to allself-employed pension plans, but with the Vanbrugh Flexible Retirement Plan they are only the beginning of a uniquely attractive investment proposition

THE LOANBACK FACILITY.

You can now invest in a pension plan without locking up your money until you retire. Vanbrugh's LOANBACK FACILITY may allow you to borrow back a sum equal to the value of your accumulated funds at any time between now and retirement. The net interest on the loan accrues for the benefit of your own pension plan.

Plus a lump sum available immediately Investors in the Vanbrugh Flexible Retirement Plan may now borrow up to fifteen times their initial annual investment (subject to security and credit worthiness) from Forward Trust Limited, a subsidiary of Midland Bank, allowing investors to boost their liquidity immediately. Written quotations are available from Vanbrugh Pensions largest corporate investment institution. These funds constitute a complete range of investment opportunities - and you can vary your choice from year to year between the Property Fund, Equity Fund, Fixed Interest Fund, Guaranteed Fund, Index Linked Gilt Fund, and the Managed Fund.

The investment management of the Prudential. The Vanbrugh Pension Funds are managed directly by Prudential Portfolio Managers Limited, employing the Investment Fund Managers of The Prudential Assurance Company Limited, the U.K.s

A flexible approach to early retirement.

More and more professional people now choose to retire before 65. To make this possible, the Vanbrugh Flexible Retirement Plan lives up to its name; you could start drawing your pension as early as 60, in phases if required.

Built-in insurance against accident or illness. For annual plans a small additional annual sum insures you against future inability, through accident or illness, to continue in the same occupation. Should this happen, your pension contribution will he waived.

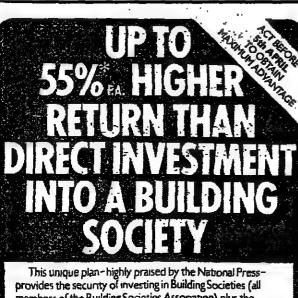

Loyalty bonus after 10 years. When at least 10 yearly premiums or 120 monthly premiums have been paid into the Vanbrugh Flexible Retirement Plan, all benefits will be increased by 212% on retirement.

Please post this coupor urgently to take full advantage of tax relief available before April 5th. Your pension should now be your top investment priority.

The game was played as much like Test cricket as something that is not Test cricket can be: no quarter given, the bowling done mostly at medium pace, the runs coming mostly to third man, until with 100 on the Gooch sent someone down there.

A slowish pitch, less thickly grassed than most of them here, provided occasional movement off the seam. To get among the wickets — the Englishmen need to hold their catches, which they failed to do. Cook was missed four times — once, a difficult diving chance to Knott, and three times in the slips.

Since the ground was first Since the ground was first used in 1956-57, during the MCC tour of that winter, the blue gums, which separate it from the Wanderers Golf course, have grown to be almost as tall as the pylons. In those days, from the press box, we were able to watch. Bobby Locke preparing to win another British Open. There would have been no question then of the South There would have been no question then of the South African amateur strokeplay championship being won, as it was in Durban on Wednesday, by one of a visiting Chinese team. > After Richards had been After Richards had been caught at short extra cover, half-stopping a drive at Underwood, Kirsten came in and played the best imnings of the day. By the close of play, South Africa, with so much batting to come, had given a very fair idea of just how good a side they would still be, against Australia, West Indies or anyone else in the world.

The blacks in the crowd stayed on to cheer Cook to his 100, and with an hour left, Gooch knew what it was like not to have the howing he needed. The South Africans scored 75 in the morning, 82 in the afternoon and 120 after teg — the three sessions each being of two hours.

The English bowling showed up the lack of variation that is common to every English side, at virtually every level. Only Underwood offered anything slower than medium pace. I liked the look of Taylor. He has a useful whippiness about him and a good, strong build. He could play for England this year if he is allowed to.

Old bowled unluckily and well, if you can be said to bowl well and yet walk back to bowl so slowly. Lever, too, did nothing to help the over-rate—a wretched 13.5 an hour. He seemed at times to forget that he was not in India any more. Once, when he had a wide called against him, he made such an unholy fuss about it that we were shown how to stop a game in its tracks.

The biggest cheer of the day, other then for Cook's 100, greeted the players when chinese team. On the radio Charles Fortune still rangbeth on, and in the afternoon fleery clouds still come to smudge the azure sky.

The Australians contributed to their own downfall. Their most successful batsmen of recent times, Chappell and Border, were run out off successive deliveries mid-way through the afternoon. Chappell had been in superfative form, striking 32 runs from 36 deliveries, with six boundaries, when his partner Dyson turned a Hadlee delivery to Cairns at fine leg. Chappell called "wait" but was committed to the run when Dyson kept going. Cairns' quick pick-up and return just beat the Australian captain.

Border capitulated in an amateurish fashion. The only delivery he faced hit him on the pad and ran away to gully. Border meandered down the pitch and although Coney's throw missed the stumps, Crowe, backing up at cover, returned the Widnes, in their hard-earned victory at Wigan in the last round, seemed ready for yet another Wembley appearance, despite their long injury list. Like Liverpool in the other football world, they seem able to pluck players from trees or from holes in the ground in times of crisis.

This afternoon for the tough game against Bradford Northern at Odsal, they will be without Cunningham, Burke, Gregory and Lockwood. The loss of such fine players would cripple most sides but Widnes can call upon skifful replacements in John and Tony Myler, Hulme and Steve O'Neill.

Northern have one or two injury problems, but not of the same scale as Widnes. It will be a battle royal, as always between these sides, but I expect Widnes' professionalism and teamwork to win the day.

The other three ties will be played tomorrow. The most attractive, in open rugby terms, could be at Leigh where Castleford will match the home side move for move. Leigh have no injury problems, but Castleford are likely to be without their player-coach Malcolm Reilly.

Hull, installed as favourites, would appear to have the easiest tie with the visit of the second division side, Halifax. However, Halifax are brave cup fighters who reached a semi-final a couple of seasons ago, and they could upset Hull if the Humbersiders

It was his lowest tournament score and was mainly due to wonderful short from play, although he did chip in from 40 feet at the ninth and hole out a 45-foot putt at the 14th. Hale Irwin, the US Open champion of 1974 and 1979, as well as Tom Kite, the winner at Bay Hill on Monday, were close behind with 65, while David Graham of Australia, the reigning US Open champion, arrived in a strong position with 67. Bobby Clampett, playing with Britain's Sandy Lyle (70) and Sam Torrenca (75) scored a 68, as did South Africa's Mark McNulty.

The last-16 round of the Mc-Ewan's Lager tournament, being played at Stockton YMCA, is dominated by six Australians and five Pakistanis, with five other nations each represented by one player, Rex Beilamy writes. The most surprising result in the first round was the defeat of the tenth seed. Gawain Briars of Britain, who has recently been in good form.

Briars was beaten by the once formidable Mohibullah Khan, who is struggling to regain his former eminence after injury and illness. There can be little doubt that the first prize of £2,285 will be won by the world champion Jahangir Khan, aged 13, who has not been beaten since Geoff Runt precariously got the better of itim in the final of the British Open championship at Bromley last April.

Like everyone else in the Stockton draw, Jahangir is on his toes because he is aware that there will be only one more this season's British championship.

Smal Hwang, the teenage South Korean who fell upon the bad-minton world like a meteor last year, received a similar surprise herself here today. Two weeks hefore her decease of the All-England title at Wembley she was beaten 11—6. 5—11, 11—1 by the left-handed Chinese player, Wu Hoddle passed his fitness test yesterday afternoon and makes his eighth Wembley appearance in a year. Beside him will be Ardles, who departs for Argentina in three weeks. Both matchwinners, as they proved in two astonishing exhibitions at Stamford Bridge and the Goldstone Ground respectively, they will be supported by Hazard, rightfully given preference over Villa, the substitute. If Hoddle feels any reaction to his injury this morning Villa will come off the substitute's bench and the No 12 shirt will go to Roberts.

stitute's bench and the No 12 shirt will go to Roberts.

Sourcess carries Liverpool's stamp of authority, keeping a tight control over their economic possession. The clusive McDermott represents a danger with those characteristic, long runs from deep into the space vacated by Dalglish. Whelan has blossomed into an outstanding prospect but may be overawed by the atmosphere, as may Rush, their leading scorer with 22 goals. It all promises so much and, with both clubs standing on the threshold of European semi-finals, it becomes an important steppingssone to the rest of the season. Whoever wins, Tottenham's supporters will know that the two trophies, the old and the new, will be lifted by one of their old boys". sponsorship of the competition. It almost overflows with expectation. As Gleen Hoddle warms, though, the display may fall short of those hopes. "Liverpool and Tottenham, have been the most entertaining sides in the League this season and we'd love to put on a showpiece," he said.." But there is a lot of tension and Wembley on final day and I jest hope we can relax and play like I know we cau. If Liverpool do the same, we couldy be in for a hell of a game." There lies the kev to the kingdom of Wembley. The two sides, both current cup holders, are sufficely balanced that nerves, even the finitely balanced that nerves, even the fulter of one butterfly, may be enough to unlock a tie that is sure to be heartly guarded. Who ever settles first will emerge triumphant. Form and history, unreliable guides though they now ye on such an occasion, suggest that it will be Spurs. Liverpool's defence was perturbed earlier in the season more by the wild behaviour of Clemence's successor, Grobbellaar, than by the opposition. But he has curbed his alarming eccentricities to be beaten only 10 mines in his ast 18 outings. The introduction of four youngsters disrupted Bob Paisley's pattern until a majestic run after Christmas dispelled doubts about their ability and character. Cunningham call-up

The last time Rou Greenwood, England's manager, saw Laurie Cunningham, he was lying in a hospital bed recovering from injury in January. The hext time he sees him will be in Bilbao, the industrial city that will become England's adopted home during the first round of the World Copthis summer, Stuart Jones writes. Cunningham, a talented black winger formerly of Orient and West Bromwich Albion, moved to Real Madrid for a fee of film in June 1979 but his Spanish career has been riddled by leg affments. He gained the last of his six international caps as a substitute in the qualifying group match against Romania. Mr Greenwood has included him against Athletic Bilbao on Tuesday week and explained: "It is easy for him to travel up from Madrid and it would be stupid not to have him in the squad." Cunningham will be able to team up with his former colleague at West Brom, Regis, who made an impressive, if brief, debut recently against Northern Ireland.

If there are post-ponements, efforts will be made to rind alternative dates before the Sevens begin next month; strenuous efforts in champion-ships or promotions are involved. No side need fear relegation. In more comfortable conditions last lund, the clubs decided at the Scotish Rugby Union's annual general meeting that each of the seven divisions in the league should have fourteen clubs instead of 12. To achieve this relegation was suspended and clubs will now either move up one position or stay where they are.

For example, the leading two sides in division 2 will be promoted to bring division 1 up to 14 teams. That will leave only 10

North travel south hopefully

The North made a considerable dent in the last round of the John Player Cup a formight ago, when Gosforth, Sale and Liverpool came through to take their places

Gosforth, Sale and Liverpool came through to take their places in the last eight. By this evening, however, all three may have been shouldered aside: all of them must travel and two of them at least may be faced with conditions inhibiting their normal expansion style of play.

The third, Gosforth, gave some indication last week of how they approach their game with the bolders, Leicester, at Welford Road. Last Saturday they beat Sale 30—3, a somewhat misleading result since Sale lost both their flankers in the first half through injury; three tries came from the No. 8 Simpson, and their halves, Young and Johnson, hardly let the ball out at all.

The pattern may be the same today, with Gosforth striving to keep the ball away from Leicester's bevy of international backs. Ten of the XV which lost to Leicester in last season's cup final remain and they will not disbacks. Ten of the XV which lost to Leicester in last season's cup final remain and they will not discount Leicester's frequently under-rated forwards, who welcome Joyce back to the second pulled hamstring and Deacon is still on anti-hiotics after sustaining a cut head in the game against Harlequins last week. Johnson, the captain, and Woodward have both come through slight bouts of influenza and the confidence of a side—even deprived of their normal stripes because of a colour clash with Gosforth's green and white shirts—whose belief in each other at cup times is immense should pull them through to their 18th successive cup win.

Sale meer Gloucester at Kingsholm without two injured backs, the wing, Spaven, and stand-off, Phillips, and a flanker, Shertatt. Spaven's injury, however, allows the inclusion of Benjamin, last season's leading try-scorer before Christmas until he broke a leg. He resumed operations last November but the other replacements, Nigel Wright and Meachin, have had only a handful of senior games this season.

Gloucester bave had an easy cup passage so far, against High Wycombe and Exeter, and their only problem is the state of the pitch, battered by driving rain storms this week. But they are a very adaptable side and many people's favourites to win the cup hill season. They may, however, pulled hamstring and Deacon is Liverpool field the same XV which pipped Bristol in the last round when they play Moseley at the Reddings, another ground far from its best just now. Here are two teams who delight in open rugby, particularly now that the former Wrekin College half-back pair. Perry and Sutherland, have renewed their partnership at club level for Moseley. Liverpool may be the north's best bet for a semifinal place; they have not lost since November 21 last year.

Little change in laws

The conclusions of the International Board (IB), whose annual meeting closed yesterday in London, are notable mainly for the fact that they produced no conclusions at all on topics which have aroused so much interest this season. In view of the time delay between proposals being admitted and action taken, this is not entirely surprising but it was disappointing to hear that the laws rewrite sub-committee no longer exists, David Hands writes.

laws rewrite sub-committee no longer exists, David Hands writes.

As my colleague Gerald Davies pointed out earlier this week, there is a crying need for the laws to be more clearly defined but now the IB have reverted to their former position, in which member countries present their individual proposals. It was emphasized vesterday by Roger Vanderfield (Australia), the IB's laws spokesman, that the rewrite committee's work had produced many submissions.

Dr Vanderfield suggested that the main item for the IB's consideration next year would be offences covered by free kicks and penalties. But there has obviously been disagreement among members over the rewrite committee's overall recommendations and the suggestion by Wales that the penalty goal should be reduced in value to two poluts.

The main changes to the laws metre marks.

In the first instance the IB felt three-man scrums could be dangerous and regard the move as a safety measure; in the second it was felt the furthest player concept currently propounded in law 23 served no useful purpose and encouraged players to contrive a penalty. The new tackle law instituted this season has not, it was felt, been given sufficient time to prove its worth.

Ten Up (3.20) is my selection for the Hunter-Chase, even though he has not run under rules this season. The horse, aged 15, who won the Cheltenham Gold Cup in 1975 when he was an eight-year-old, showed that he was as sprightly as ever when he won a point-to-point two weeks ago at Twesedown by four lengths. So the stage looks set for Ballyross and Ten Up to complete a rather curious double. Ballyross belongs to Anne, Duchess of Westminster, who

British triumph | Miss Brew again

British triumph

English runners had a field day at Cagnes-our-Mer yesterday; taking the first three places in a fine finish to the Prix de la Vesuhie.

The Tom Marshall-trained Star of Enzo, well ridden by Dennis Mckay, caught Little Starchy, the favourite, in the final statice to capture the £3,600 prize by a short-kead. In third place, another short-head away, was sold a mouth ago to Miss Brew's mother and is being prepared for Aintree by David Morley the Bury St. Edmunds trainer.

Golden Reef and Saba Nejd are the other English runners of the meeting in tomorrow's Prix Dufy. A victory here would take the visitor's total to 13 wins, equalling the record and giving them earnings of over £70,000.

MISS Brew agam Charlone Brew, the first woman jockey ever to tackle the fearsome Grand National feaces is back in the Liverpool Limelinght.

She is hoping to ride Martinstown in the National on April 3. Martinstown, formerly owned and trained in Dorset by Mrs Mita Easton, was sold a mounth ago to Miss Brew's mother and is being prepared for Aintree by David Morley the Bury St. Edmunds trainer.

Badsworth Boy, conceding lumps of weight to his four rivals, camtered home, hard held by Robert Earnshaw in the Waddington Steeplechase at Market Rasen yesterday.

Starlight Lad made the early running, but five fences out he was outjumped by Badsworth Boy, who steadily drew clear to score by 15 lengths from Cole Porter.

Michael Dickinson's father, Tony, said: "He jumped well and I was delighted, as that has been a weakness in the past, but he has steadily improved in this department and Robert Earnshaw has played a big part."

Devon Mignon regained his first win for three seasons in the Nocton Handicap Hurdle.

Chris Grant always had the 12-year-old handily placed and sent him ahead at the last flight. Trent Valley tried to challenge but Devon Mignon, a 20-1 chance, drew clear for a three-length success.

Skegby landed a resounding top weight victory in the Binbrook Handicap Steeplechase and provided the going is not too soft at Cheltenham will contest the Ritz Club National Hunt Chase on Thursday.

It was after Skegby's win, which earned him a 3lb penalty at Cheltenham, that a brief snow storm swept the course and it was decided to abandon the following 13-runner novices' steeplechase.

MANON (BBC 2, 7.40pm), Kenneth MacMillan's Uvee B et, danced by the Royal Ballet is an honest-to-goodness record of the production performed on the stage of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, two months ago. Nothing added. Nothing which does not lop off arms and legs, but keeps the whole dancar in what when it is essential that we should know how an emption is... born and how it then travels along arms, down trunks, and into legs. When the camera does go in closer, it is only to scan faces dance. Colin Nears, the director, admirable technique for filming beliet, but clearly he is the man who is perfecting it. The ballet a fine quartet of principal dancers in Jennifer Penny (Manon), Anthony Dowell (Des Grieux), David Wall (Lescaut) and Derek Rencher (Monsieur G. M.); the design, by Nicholas Georgiadis, carries constant reminders of the rags from which Manon briefly raduates to riches, and the Massenet themes, newly arranged and orchestrated, provide a score which has offered Kenneth MacMillan much scope for his gifts as a choreographer who is as finely tuned to Abbé Prévost's sensual tale as Puccini and Massenet were when Manon in the opera house.

 Radio choices: The Welsh National Opera's production of I PURITANI live from Cardiff (Radio 3, 7,15pm), and Michael Wall's utionary etory about an East-et relationship JAPANESE STYLE (Radio 3, 2.05) Very touching theme and very sensitively played by Megumi Shimnuki and Michael Cochrains as pupil and teacher. And it is onl on Radio 2 (3.00) that you can follow the whole of the Spurs w Liverpool Cup Final game at Wembley.

Without the natural cooling system sweat glands provide, frequent immersion in water is necessary and the crow people are often seen swimming or pouring buckets of water over them-

A colony of eight crow people, including the child-ren, live in southern Mexico, around the towns of Palenque and Playas de Catazaja. They belong to two families: the Gongoras in Catazaja, in which four middle-aged brothers and one grandson are afflicted, and 30 miles away in

The condition is not so disabling that the sufferers cannot work. The Gongora have been reported in North brothers are farmers and the gene has skipped a generation; their children are normal, but one grandson is affected. The two families, whose known treatment.

These smooth skinned Mexicans, nicknamed locally the crow people because they like dousing themselves with water, are a genetic oddity, having been born without sweat glands in their skin.

Letter from Barnsley

Why the Rotterdam four may mar Mason's maths nas been timed for learn today and the delegates ferry, the MV Norstar from Rotterdam to Hull, was not due to dock until sam. If delegates are not in their places at the start of the reselection conference they are not permitted to vote or even to attend the meeting. The Rotterdam four will have their work cut out.

their work cut out.

When they made atteunts to have the timing of the meering moved to a more confortable hour they were hotly opposed by the left wing of the constituency party, the most notable member of which was Mr Arthur Scargill, president of the Yorkshire miners and president-elect of the National Union of Mineworkers. The timing stood,

Union of Mineworkers. The timing stood.

Most observers believe that Mr Mason will have a relatively easy ride. Mr Mason's hope, however, is that not too many people rake that view because it could lead to too few of his supporters attending the conference.

Mr Mason's position is fer from clear. He is an NUM-snonsored MP and has been all his political life. In the past two years Barnsley constituency Labour Party has been taken over by left-wing miners' delegates who occupy all posts except that of vice-chairman, held by Mr Brown.

If things go according to plan, just about the time this newspaper drops through your letter box this morning four delegates to Barnsley and that has come to the surface from time to time when Mr Mason has refused to be instructed how he must vote. It was therefore against the run of play when Mr Scargill announced last May that Yorkshire NUM-spousored MPs would not be opposed by union nominees in this series of reselection conferences. The reason given was that the whole process would have to be undertaken would have to be undertaken again on the redrawing of constituency boundaries, which is expected in 1983, in time for the next general

On the face of it, therefore, Mr Mason should be reasonably confident. He has obtained 45 nominations including eight branches of the NUM, nine branches of the Transport and General Workers' Union to which his opponent, Mr Brown belongs, and smaller numbers of 13 and smaller numbers of 13 other trade unions, as well as a majority of ward parties. Mr Brown has secured four Mr Brown has secured four nominations, one each from his own branch of the TGWU and his ward party and two—the ward party and women's section—from Wordsbrough, where, coincidentally, Mr and Mrs Scargill dentally, Mr and Mrs Scargill live.

Even so, Mr Mason is still not at ease. Of the forty-five branch nominations, four or five are ineligible to vote because their delegates have not attended a meeting of the constituency party in the past twelve months. Many miners' branches will simply not send delegates, considering Mr Mason's success a fait accompli.

Another imponderable is that although Mr Scargill and his area council colleagues have taken a decision not to oppose Mr Mason and his fellow sponsored MPs with other NUM nominees, when the cards are down the area council has no say in how NUM branch delegates vote. It is a free vote and a secret one.

If the ground is fit — if it does not stick to your boots, sow seeds of hardy annuals where they are to flower — sweet peas, calendulas, nigella, godetla, clarkia, sweet alysom, limara, larkspur, esclischolzia and the rest.

In a heated greenhouse, propazating case or on a windowsill indoors, sow half hardy annuals—nicotianas, antirchinums, asters, ipomoeas, lobelias, petunias, salvius, tagetes and zinnias.

Sow tomato seeds indoors for growing under cold glass. Plant onion sets, just covering them with soil. Sow herb seeds now in pots or boxes to prick off and plant out later; plant herbs like mint, thyme, rosemary or, sage from a nursery or garden centre for quicker results.
